Summary of the Course

A study of 19th-century European music in its historical, social and cultural contexts. Includes a tutorial in musicological research techniques and discussion of historical performing conventions.

Course Learning Outcomes

1. Demonstrate familiarity with the most representative compositions of the Romantic period, including opera, Lieder, solo and chamber music, and orchestral works.
2. Discuss the historical significance and stylistic features of 19th century compositions in an articulate and informed manner.
3. Display acquired knowledge about music and society in 19th-century Europe and the role 19th-century aesthetics, intellectual ideas and world-view played in shaping modern musicological discourse (historiography).
4. Explain changing historical performance practices and the role these play in shaping the listeners impression of compositions.

Teaching Strategies

Rationale:

Students are expected to take responsibility for their own learning and to demonstrate some independence and initiative for self-directed work through regular preparation (reading / listening), informed contribution to class discussions, locating relevant resources and preparing individual and/or group assignments.

The content is organized around genres and performing media (orchestral, vocal, solo piano, and opera) which allows the recurring observation of typical Romantic ideas and creative practices, fostering deep learning. Classes dedicated to the discussion of contemporary intellectual, social and scientific trends help place music within the broader history of the developing Western world and highlights links with earlier and later periods. The assignments expand on topics discussed in class and enable students to explore chosen aspects in more detail (e.g. essay) while class activities foster the practical application of newly gained theoretical knowledge in practice (e.g. listening tasks and score analysis).

Teaching strategies:

The course is taught through lectures and tutorials, with relevant assessment. The lectures will provide information, stimulate questions, and give musical examples through the use of recordings and DVDs, which will allow students to gain familiarity with the repertoire and its associated issues (including performance issues, use of primary/secondary sources, and defining/evaluating historical periods and their artistic manifestations). The tutorials will enable students to further discuss these issues individually and in groups, increase their knowledge of 19th-century musical practices and provide further opportunity for in-depth analyses of 19th-century scores, with use of appropriate musical terminology.

Academic Honesty and Plagiarism

Plagiarism is using the words or ideas of others and presenting them as your own. It can take many forms, from deliberate cheating to accidentally copying from a source without acknowledgement.

UNSW groups plagiarism into the following categories:

Copying: using the same or very similar words to the original text or idea without acknowledging the source or using quotation marks. This also applies to images, art and design projects, as well as presentations where someone presents another's ideas or words without credit.

Inappropriate paraphrasing: Changing a few words and phrases while mostly retaining the original structure and/or progression of ideas of the original, and information without acknowledgement. This also applies in presentations where someone paraphrases another's ideas or words without credit and to piecing together quotes and paraphrases into a new whole, without appropriate referencing.

Collusion: working with others but passing off the work as a person's individual work. Collusion also includes providing your work to another student before the due date, or for the purpose of them plagiarising at any time, paying another person to perform an academic task, stealing or acquiring another person's academic work and copying it, offering to complete another person's work or seeking payment for completing academic work.

Inappropriate citation: Citing sources which have not been read, without acknowledging the "secondary" source from which knowledge of them has been obtained.

Duplication ("self-plagiarism"): submitting your own work, in whole or in part, where it has previously been prepared or submitted for another assessment or course at UNSW or another university.

Correct referencing practices:

- Paraphrasing, summarising, essay writing and time management
- Appropriate use of and attribution for a range of materials including text, images, formulae and concepts.

Individual assistance is available on request from The Learning Centre (<http://www.lc.unsw.edu.au/>). Students are also reminded that careful time management is an important part of study and one of the identified causes of plagiarism is poor time management. Students should allow sufficient time for research, drafting and proper referencing of sources in preparing all assessment items.

UNSW Library also has the ELISE tool available to assist you with your study at UNSW. ELISE is designed to introduce new students to studying at UNSW but it can also be a great refresher during your study.

Completing the ELISE tutorial and quiz will enable you to:

- analyse topics, plan responses and organise research for academic writing and other assessment tasks
- effectively and efficiently find appropriate information sources and evaluate relevance to your needs
- use and manage information effectively to accomplish a specific purpose
- better manage your time

- understand your rights and responsibilities as a student at UNSW
- be aware of plagiarism, copyright, UNSW Student Code of Conduct and Acceptable Use of UNSW ICT Resources Policy
- be aware of the standards of behaviour expected of everyone in the UNSW community
- locate services and information about UNSW and UNSW Library

Some of these areas will be familiar to you, others will be new. Gaining a solid understanding of all the related aspects of ELISE will help you make the most of your studies at UNSW.
