Summary of the Course

Subject Area: Music Performance, Music Composition, Music Ensemble, Performance Curation

MUSC4705 Performance Laboratory D (Music Creative Practice) is the fourth and final Performance Laboratory course for your Music Creative Practice major. You will consolidate the milestones achieved in earlier Performance Lab courses through the advancement of your technical, creative, interpretive and curatorial skills. The course focuses on the performative, creative and cultural elements of music making to augment your individual and collective performance experience and expertise. In addition, you will critically examine the nature of performance and the varied ways different kinds of musicians and artists collaborate to create innovative, cutting-edge performance formats reflective of the 21st century's cultural milieu. Throughout the course, you will work on devising, developing and realising a creative individual or collaborative project of 30 minutes in length (20 minutes for composers), which will be presented in a public performance event in Term 3. You will also extend your experience of ensemble music making by participating and performing in an approved ensemble or chamber-music group under the guidance of an ensemble director or chamber music coach.

Note: This is a 12 UOC course. You will enrol in 4 UOC in each of three successive terms with a result reported by a single grade at the end of the third 4 UOC course.

Course Learning Outcomes

1. Fashion and realise personal artistic ideas with the necessary technical, musical and presentation skills to express them with professionalism and conviction in a public performance
2. Apply principles of teamwork to music ensemble

Teaching Strategies

With the support of specialist vocal, instrumental or composition teachers, class workshops and public masterclasses, students will further refine performance or composition skills through devising, developing and realising an original creative performance project that showcases their technical, interpretative, artistic and curatorial strengths. Collaboration and leadership skills required by a developing performer will be honed through in-class workshop participation and participation in a university ensemble or a self-directed chamber-music group, with opportunities to take a leadership or mentor role as appropriate to each ensemble. These activities will contribute to the development of intellectual and aesthetic independence required for professional engagement with performance or composition. Critical skills will be further refined through spoken and written articulation of complex concepts and ideas as related to the conceptualisation and realisation of the creative performance project.

Research/Creative Project

A rite beginning

Choose a real moment in your life that changed your conception of yourself as a musician. In a real sense, this moment forms part of your narrative identity which you are attempting to express, realise or recount in musical form. Alternatively, you may imagine such an event and one that occurs in another time and place. The first step, is to create a narrative based on your particular rite of passage, real or imagined in the form of: the departure, the journey, and the return but keeping in mind that the characteristic of the middle part, the journey is the condition or state of liminality.

Your narrative may be presented in visual, pictorial form or in prose with a clear representation of the three phases and the features that mark them.

Your musical presentation can be any length between 5 and 15 minutes. The main challenges in this project are:

1. realising the experience of liminality in musical form

2. producing cogency and a satisfying shape to the presentation, and

3. Creating a sense that your creative artefact comes from lived experience.

MORE DETAILS ON THE ABOVE PROJECT ARE INCLUDED IN MOODLE: IT IS ESSENTIAL THAT YOU READ THEM.

Comparative Masterclass Critiques

In the comparative masterclass critiques you will interpret ways in which various music practitioners (masterclass presenters) approach specific aspects of music-making, highlighting parallels, differences and overlaps. Some questions to consider when writing the critique:

1. What are the commonalities in their approaches or ways of thinking about a specific issue?
2. Are there similarities or overlaps in their creative process? If so, can you articulate them? if not, where do the differences lie, and do they still arrive at the same artistic outcome?
3. What are the specific differences in their approaches? What do you attribute the differences to? Do their artistic goals differ fundamentally, or are they just using different methods to achieve similar goals?
4. What approach or way of thinking is more closely aligned to your own musical/artistic goals? Why?

Submission notes: Submit via Moodle

Academic Honesty and Plagiarism

Plagiarism is using the words or ideas of others and presenting them as your own. It can take many forms, from deliberate cheating to accidentally copying from a source without acknowledgement.

UNSW groups plagiarism into the following categories:

Copying: using the same or very similar words to the original text or idea without acknowledging the source or using quotation marks. This also applies to images, art and design projects, as well as presentations where someone presents another's ideas or words without credit.

Inappropriate paraphrasing: Changing a few words and phrases while mostly retaining the original structure and/or progression of ideas of the original, and information without acknowledgement. This also applies in presentations where someone paraphrases another's ideas or words without credit and to piecing together quotes and paraphrases into a new whole, without appropriate referencing.

Collusion: working with others but passing off the work as a person's individual work. Collusion also includes providing your work to another student before the due date, or for the purpose of them plagiarising at any time, paying another person to perform an academic task, stealing or acquiring another person's academic work and copying it, offering to complete another person's work or seeking payment for completing academic work.

Inappropriate citation: Citing sources which have not been read, without acknowledging the "secondary" source from which knowledge of them has been obtained.

Duplication ("self-plagiarism"): submitting your own work, in whole or in part, where it has previously been prepared or submitted for another assessment or course at UNSW or another university.

Correct referencing practices:

- Paraphrasing, summarising, essay writing and time management
- Appropriate use of and attribution for a range of materials including text, images, formulae and concepts.

Individual assistance is available on request from The Learning Centre (http://www.lc.unsw.edu.au/). Students are also reminded that careful time management is an important part of study and one of the identified causes of plagiarism is poor time management. Students should allow sufficient time for research, drafting and proper referencing of sources in preparing all assessment items.

UNSW Library also has the ELISE tool available to assist you with your study at UNSW. ELISE is designed to introduce new students to studying at UNSW but it can also be a great refresher during your study.

Completing the ELISE tutorial and quiz will enable you to:

- analyse topics, plan responses and organise research for academic writing and other assessment tasks
- effectively and efficiently find appropriate information sources and evaluate relevance to your needs
- use and manage information effectively to accomplish a specific purpose
- better manage your time

- understand your rights and responsibilities as a student at UNSW
- be aware of plagiarism, copyright, UNSW Student Code of Conduct and Acceptable Use of UNSW ICT Resources Policy
- be aware of the standards of behaviour expected of everyone in the UNSW community
- locate services and information about UNSW and UNSW Library

Some of these areas will be familiar to you, others will be new. Gaining a solid understanding of all the related aspects of ELISE will help you make the most of your studies at UNSW.
